

What is claimed is:

1. An apparatus, comprising:
a lens-shaped body including first and second regions, wherein the second region has a lower light transmission characteristic than the first region, and wherein the at least a portion of the second region is configured to reduce a retinal distortion.